

`\phantom` $\langle argument \rangle$

This command produces an empty box having the same size and placement that $\langle argument \rangle$ would have were it typeset. One use of `\phantom` is for reserving space for a symbol that for some reason needs to be drawn in by hand.

Example:

`12`

produces:

1 2