

`\relax`

This command tells T_EX to do nothing. It's useful in a context where you need to provide a command but there's nothing that you want T_EX to do.

Example:

```
\def\medspace{\hspace 12pt\relax}
% The \relax guards against the possibility that
% The next tokens are 'plus' or 'minus'.
```